THE DAHLIA FOR THE MILLIONS

America's Greatest Dahlia Sensation

HILL'S PINK SUPREME

Hill, 1939, I. D. Probably the finest introduction ever placed on the market by any grower for the florist and cut flower trade. Blooms run around eight inches, on the longest stems of any dahlia in cultivation today, bar none. The greatest dahlia since the advent of Jersey Beauty, a long time ago. Just as good a keeper when cut and stems very much longer. Very prolific with dark green insect-resistant foliage, stems starting from the bottom of the plant and running straight up three to five feet long with this fine, dark, pink dahlia looking you right in the face.

We are so much enthused with this wonderful new creation in a dahlia that we are willing to stake our entire reputation over a period of many years on this wonderful new creation. We desire to see this dahlia in every garden from coast to coast, therefore the following very low prices:

DAHLIA CULTURE

Space will not permit us to go over every detail in regard to soil. The fellow that tries this is taking quite a thing on his hands. Grow Dahlias where you would grow a good garden, this is all we have to offer.

DAHLIA STORAGE—This seems to be the big elephant on the hands of most growers. We suggest as follows, read carefully. Dig today and store today, not tomorrow. Do not allow to wilt under no consideration. As you dig, do not break necks, trim off all suckers and cut off the stalk as close as possible. Every inch of stalk is an inch of trouble. Avoid stem rot in this manner, store in barrels or boxes or large metal containers you can find at most any city dump. Cover all roots with peat moss, saw-dust or other material but our best suggestion is this, use old newspapers; wad these up and pack in just as snug as possible using all you possibly can. If you are a Flower Grower Reader, check this in their November issue. NOTE—The more parafine paper you can use the better. Such as bread wrappers, etc. Pack plenty snugly on top of the container or better still use Vermiculite.

ROOTED CUTTINGS—Plant in pots as soon as received from us. Not heavy soil and use no fertilizer to burn the tender roots. Grow as long as you can in a cold frame to harden off the same as you would any plant, such as tomatoes, etc., that you would secure from the greenhouse.

ROOTED CUTTINGS

The time has now come to tell our customers that we prefer Rooted Cuttings to plants, they are much less liable to be root bound, much easier handled, and seem to result in healthier growth. They can be planted upon receiving, or better still, put in pots and harden off to the air in a shady place until such time as you desire to plant. Use a strip of tar paper to protect from cut worms. If you plant on receiving cuttings, protect from the hot sun for a short time. Peach baskets are good, removing same in the late afternoon. Handle carefully for a short time and you will have every success in the world.

Remember cuttings are much lighter and can be shipped special handling, and you will receive them as soon as a letter.

SPECIAL OFFER—We will ship 6 rooted cuttings, our selection, of the newer dahlias we have in the greenhouse, and guarantee to surprise you, on receipt of $3.00, Special Handling, to your door.
